

Job Description

Job Title:	Writing and Communication Advisor - Graduate Student and Postdoctoral Fellow Support
Department:	Writing and Communication Centre
Reports To:	Manager, Graduate Student and Postdoctoral Fellow Programs
Jobs Reporting:	None
Salary Grade:	USG 8 - 10
Effective Date:	July 2021

Primary Purpose

Reporting to the Manager, Graduate Student and Postdoctoral Fellow Programs, the Writing and Communication Advisor is responsible for performing a range of teaching, coaching, and development activities in order to develop graduate and undergraduate students' writing, speaking, presenting, and visual communication competencies for academic work, research communication, and professionalization. These competencies are directly linked to undergraduate and graduate degree level expectations. Although they are focused on graduate student and postdoctoral fellow competencies, the incumbent also advises undergraduate students across all academic programs and all levels, and they must be familiar with a significant range of academic disciplinary genres and conventions, as well as with the general expectations for students at different levels of degree completion. Using a range of research-supported pedagogical strategies, the incumbent teaches, coaches, and supports students and postdoctoral fellows in individual appointments and in group appointments. Depending on what is required, they may develop, design, and facilitate workshops and other programs to target specific communication skills and strategies; they may collaborate with faculty to develop and deliver customized workshops for classes, research labs and institutes, and academic programs; and they may produce accessible synchronous and asynchronous virtual sessions, learning objects, and resources using various technologies and platforms. The incumbent works in a collaborative environment with responsibilities for information sharing and teamwork on projects, including taking the lead on organizational initiatives as required.

This is a job ladder position and, as such, incumbents will have opportunities to develop competencies in areas identified by the job ladder rubric. At times, Writing and Communication Advisors with a disciplinary or subject area specialization may be recruited and designated as a subject expert to provide an intensive teaching focus for that area.

Key Accountabilities

Support undergraduate and graduate students and postdoctoral fellows in developing academic and professional writing competencies, speaking and presentation competencies, language learning, and/or visual communication:

- Foster strong, respectful, and supportive advising relationships with people from a range of backgrounds, experience levels, language levels, learning experiences, and academic programs
- Develop trust with people one-on-one; attend to the values and needs of the person seeking service
- Cultivate an environment that supports the equitable development of resiliency, self-efficacy, and agency
- Support people in defining and articulating learning goals or outcomes, and with creating pathways to success in meeting those goals

Job Description

- Assess people's prior learning/knowledge/experiences; adapt teaching to and scaffold learning based on person's current level/status
- Support and encourage reflexive, active, and self-directed learning
- Recommend relevant resources, tools, and other supports for the person based on their learning trajectory and goals
- Facilitate sessions using relevant and appropriate strategies for the person and situation: directive and non-directive teaching; inquiry/questioning; scaffolding; reflection; genre analysis; rhetorical analysis; etc.
- Ensure that principles of equity, specifically related to language and linguistic equity, are upheld in all aspects of teaching and support while promoting writers' agency
- Address teaching to the relevant stage(s) of the composing process; help to identify and define challenging stages of people's composing processes such as brainstorming/ideation, developing a research focus or question, reading research, taking notes, comparing evidence, planning and outlining, composing components or sections for discipline-specific genres, integrating evidence, signposting and transitioning, drafting and revising, creating data visualizations, integrating visuals, designing documents or presentations visually, editing and polishing, responding to and integrating feedback, practicing public speaking and presenting, etc.
- Provide expert advice on such topics and processes as writing productivity, academic publishing, professional communication, presentations, public scholarship, managing large writing projects, etc.
- Assist people with understanding and integrating feedback on their writing and communication
- Support people in determining future actions and planning next steps for their writing and communication tasks and projects, and for their overall progress and learning
- Develop familiarity with various online teaching and tutoring platforms as used by the WCC to support students in virtual remote sessions.

Enhance the WCC's reputation as source for writing and communication expertise and strengthen internal capacity to provide excellent, research-based programming

- Build and manage positive relationships with students, postdoctoral fellows, faculty, and campus partners
- Educate campus colleagues on referral processes, resources, and workshop/program opportunities
- Facilitate access to writing and communication resources that anticipate and target campus partners' needs in supporting students
- Identify gaps and needs in communication skills and support, and share these with colleagues and leadership, and seek to fill these gaps collaboratively, when possible.
- Support students registered with AccessAbility as requested and advised by Learning Strategists
- Develop a teaching praxis that is supported by current research on composition processes, teaching models and strategies and academic and professional genres.
- Stay apprised of and review new programs, workshops, resources, etc. developed by WCC colleagues
- Advise and support colleagues with teaching observations, reflection on and review of teaching sessions, etc.
- Make suggestions for and participate in professional development opportunities to enhance teaching and student development.
- Ensure that values of equity and inclusivity are embedded in programs, policies, processes, and relationships

Research and develop teaching programs and workshops to meet general and discipline-specific communication skills and strategies

- Propose programs based on identifying needs and gaps in communication skills
- Conduct research into genre, composition, and/or teaching models and strategies as needed

Job Description

- Design interactive and practice-based workshops on writing- and communication-related topics
- Help deliver a variety of continuing and multi-day programs, either individually or as part of a team, including
 - English language programs
 - Thesis and dissertation writing
 - Academic speaking support
 - Publication
 - Writing groups
- Develop program and workshop materials including power-points, handouts, and activities to facilitate learning within a diverse group of learners
- Assess the success of workshops and programs based on developed learning outcomes

Develop and maintain writing and communication resources / learning tools

- Develop and design a variety of material and digital research-based writing and communication resources
- Manage the design and development of projects related to the creation of resources, online modules, or online content Assess and recommend the use of external resources for use and recommendation by the WCC
- Assess the success of resources and/or learning tools and make amendments or recommendations for action as required

Administration and special projects

- Assist with schedule management providing timely feedback and input during planning, and by entering or amending information in the online booking calendar
- Document activities for metrics and assessment
- Write reports about initiatives and programs as required
- Assist with marketing and communications plans by writing web content, writing blogs, posting on social media, and/or writing copy for outgoing communications, and participating in outreach initiatives as necessary
- Support student peer tutors by participating in training, providing mentorship, and giving feedback as requested

Research and professional development

- Stay apprised of research related to fields of teaching, writing studies, writing centre studies, etc.
- Participate in relevant professional associations by attending conferences, webinars, and other professional development opportunities
- Participate in research projects as appropriate

All employees of the University are expected to follow University and departmental health and safety policy, procedures and work practices at all times. Employees are also responsible for the completion of all health and safety training, as assigned. Employees with staff supervision and/or management responsibilities will ensure that assigned staff abide by the above, and actively identify, assess and correct health and safety hazards, as required.*

Required Qualifications

Education

- Master's degree or equivalent in a field related to language, writing/composition, discourse, rhetoric, linguistics, communication, writing centre studies, TESOL, education, etc., or Master's degree in any field plus experience teaching or tutoring in writing and/or communication
- If the incumbent is designated as the STEM specialist role for this program area, a degree in a STEM field plus experience teaching or tutoring in writing and/or communication is required

Experience

- Minimum of one year tutoring or teaching experience at the post-secondary level, ideally at both undergraduate and graduate levels
- Teaching experience in a writing centre or writing program is ideal
- Experience teaching English language learners is an asset

Knowledge/Skills/Abilities

- Demonstrates excellent communication skills, both written and verbal, as well as strong interpersonal and collaboration skills
- Demonstrates sound judgement, discretion, and problem-solving skills
- Motivated, self-directed, able to work independently and collaboratively
- Able to be productive in a fast-paced time-constrained workplace, and can balance multiple priorities
- Demonstrates knowledge of writing/composition pedagogy that is culturally competent and grounded in an equity framework
- Demonstrates an understanding of workshop and group education

Nature and Scope

- Contacts: Liaise and collaborate with faculty and campus partners; recommend programs and courses of action; teach and coach students, staff, post-docs; participate in a collegial team environment within the WCC
- Level of Responsibility: Responsible for developing programs and services that support and advance graduate and undergraduate students' and postdoctoral fellows' writing and communication competencies; responsible for supporting instructor's teaching goals and course outcomes;
- Decision-Making Authority: Independently manages decision-making related to teaching and learning support; refers students to other services as required; determines action related to conducting and delivering research
- Physical and Sensory Demands: Teaching often occurs in time-constrained, high-demand contexts; teaching environments may be loud and distracting; occasionally required to transport exam or program materials to other sites on campus
- Working Environment: Teaching takes place in offices, in open area of Library, in multi-purpose spaces; travel between campuses and between campus buildings is required; weekend and evening work is required